

I'm Still Loving You

Geoff Bradford after Frédéric Chopin/George Sand

If this is our last waltz, let it linger for a while
I'm in no rush to break away, I've never loved you more than now
But you're searching for somebody in a complicated world
That's someone I could never be, we're just so different, you and me
You are young and your heart was made for love
And I'm still loving you
Don't be hurt that I have found somebody new Darling, it could never be that way
All that I feel for you is precious, that's something I could never change
But we're caught up in the currents that are pulling us apart
I need a touch that's not so distant, a safer place to put my heart
She is good, and she loves me like brand new
And I'm still loving you

But now I'm loving you with eyes wide open
I know it's time to let you go
Before the fires have grown cold
Though I could fill the night with words unspoken
Won't you leave me with a kiss
I know as long as I exist, I will remember you like this
My love
